State Rep. Don Moffitt gives Gov. Pat Quinn high marks for being involved in this years budget process. Nevertheless, on Wednesday, the state was left without a spending plan for the new fiscal year, as Republicans and many Democrats continue to balk at Quinns proposal to increase the state income tax by 1.5 percent.

California's Budget Crisis: Is There a Way Out? (Time Magazine)

For conservatives, the crisis is an opportunity to impose fiscal restraint. But the costs, say liberals, is a huge amount of suffering. Is there a solution?
